Lonza

Human Hepatocytes

Lonza is widely considered the premier provider of human hepatocytes due to their rigorous characterization and "application-specific" certification. Unlike generic cell lines, these primary cells offer the closest possible correlation to in vivo human liver metabolism.

Cryopreserved human hepatocytes, plateable and interaction qualified (HUCPI): are characterized for 3 major mechanisms of drug-drug interactions: transporter activity, enzyme activity, and induction potential (guaranteed to exhibit a 4 fold or greater change in induction activity), providing you with one product to meet more of your hepatocyte DDI study needs

Cryopreserved Plateable Human Hepatocytes (HUCPG): are characterized for high viability, enzyme activity, and induction potential, allowing their use in DMPK assays.

Cryopreserved single donor human hepatocytes (HUCSD): are characterized for high viability and general Phase I and Phase II metabolism activity in short term suspension metabolism assays.
